

Form 06

Alan Butler Awards 2017

Guidance for Judges

Successful entries will be awarded an Alan Butler 'Gold', 'Silver' or 'Bronze' Award by the judging panel

Alan Butler Gold Award

Would typically involve Groups demonstrating

- Success in delivering an excellent range and quality of communication with members, other health and safety organisations and the wider community
- Achieving an impact with an excellently structured programme (seminar or similar) with an excellent balance of activities, and an excellent range of speakers
- Significant progress in promoting and supporting HSE priorities to its members and the wider community
- Evidence of success in retaining and recruiting new members and providing excellent incentives for Group membership
- Outstanding achievement for the year

Alan Butler Silver Award

Would typically involve Groups demonstrating

- Some success in delivering a good range and quality of communication with members and other health and safety organisations
- Achieving some impact with a well-structured programme (seminar or similar) with a good balance of activities, and a good range of speakers
- Good progress in promoting and supporting HSE priorities
- Good evidence of providing incentives for Group membership
- A good achievement for the year

Alan Butler Bronze Award

Would typically involve Groups demonstrating

- A satisfactory range and quality of communication with members
- A satisfactory programme (seminar or similar) with a balance of topics and speakers
- Satisfactory progress in promoting and supporting HSE priorities
- Satisfactory evidence of providing incentives for Group membership
- A recognisable achievement for the year

Entries failing to provide any or credible evidence for a KPQ

If a group fails to provide any or any credible evidence for a KPQ, they may still be able to achieve a bronze award. This is at the judge's discretion